Continuation of Substance of Interview including description of the general nature of what was agreed to if an agreement was reached, or any other comments: 1. Examiner and Applicant's representative made a telephone interview for the purpose of overcoming the 35 U.S.C. 101 rejection that would have been given to claims 1-11 and 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph rejection that would have been given to claims 23-32.

2. A careful review of the claims reveals that the limitation recited in independent claim 1 are all software/program and since a system claims that does not include a hardware is directed to non-statutory subject matter, applicant's representative agreed to amend the claims so that the system claims 1-11 are directed to a statutory subject matter. (See Examiner's amendment)

3. Furthermore, referring to claims 23-32, a careful review of the claims reveals that the claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The specification/original disclosure fails to mention/specify or teach the limitation "tangible computer-readable storage medium", which is added on the above respective claims when the amendment was filed on 08/01/2007.

This limitation was added for the purpose overcoming the 35 U.S.C. 101 rejection set forth in the previous office action. (See for instance office action mailed on 05/01/2007).

Based on a thorough review of the entire disclosure and a text search for "tangible computer-readable storage medium", there is no "readily apparent support" for this limitation. This raises a question which mediums are explicitly included/excluded with this limitation. Without such explicit recitation in the original disclosure, the office would not be able to determine what constitutes the "tangible computer-readable storage medium". In other words, without the support in the specification, it may be the case that such limitation might also include or directed to a non-statutory subject matter.

Examiner and applicant's representative agreed on the language of the claims that would overcome the 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph rejection that would have been given to claims 23-32. (See the Examiner's amendment)
